It's coyote pupping season, so we're trying to educate people as much as possible about them. We want to help alleviate fears before they become big, and we especially want to inform dog owners about what behaviors they should expect, and what they can do if they find themselves unexpectedly in the wrong circumstances with a coyote. We now have an excellent informational video presentation, with the latest up-to-date information and guidelines, which will increase everyone's awareness and knowledge about them and should answer most questions, especially for dog owners.
